

The conference is open to all involved in pastoral and preaching ministry and their wives, as well as all men and women involved in Christian ministry and leadership. The Second London Baptist Confession of Faith of 1689 is the theological basis of the conference.

As well as the formal sessions, the conference provides plenty of time for informal fellowship and relaxation. There will be a bookstall, as well as exhibition stands run by partner organisations seeking to proclaim the gospel and extend the kingdom of Christ across the world.

TO THE ENDS OF THE EARTH

The Carey Conference is a ministry of Reformation Today
Registered charity no. 1017000 reformation-today.org

Brooks Buser ✦ Austin Walker
Sarah Allen ✦ Enoch Adekoya ✦ Lewis Allen

MISSION is integral to the kingdom of Christ. The church cannot ignore it. Yet there is confusion and perhaps even apathy among evangelical churches on the subject. What precisely is mission? How should we pursue it? What should our approach be, when (in the minds of some, at least) mission is inextricably bound up with imperialism, colonialism and racism? We look forward to hearing from our speakers on this and other vital topics for the Christian church today.

Our main speaker is Brooks Buser, President of Radius International. Brooks and his wife served among the Yembiyembi people of Papua New Guinea for 13 years. During this time they learned the Yembiyembi language, developed an alphabet, taught them to read and write, translated the Scriptures, and established a strong church. In 2016 they returned to the US and Brooks assumed the leadership of Radius International, a missionary training school that trains those going to the last unreached language groups of the world.

Brooks will be taking us through the Biblical basis for reaching the ends of the earth, the primacy of the church in missions, and the dangers that exist in the missiological world today and how they are overcome.

Austin Walker was a pastor at Maidenbower Baptist Church, Crawley, for well over four decades. He now lives in Derby and is a member of Castlefields Church. Though 'retired' he is still preaching and writing. Particular redemption has sometimes proved to be a thorny issue. Austin will examine the biblical basis and also consider how it is to be preached to the unconverted, and what assurance it provides to true believers.

Sarah Allen is a teacher, writer and Northern Director of London Seminary's Flourish Course. She has been married to Lewis for 29 years, and a pastor's wife for 26 of these. They have five just about grown up children and live in Huddersfield, West Yorkshire. Sarah will lead the two women's sessions, on 'Jesus: our joy' from the letter to the Hebrews.

Enoch Adekoya is pursuing a PhD in political theology at the University of Manchester, having previously served St Giles Church, London, as a Pastoral Assistant. Enoch will be speaking on Christian Nationalism. Enoch will examine Christian Nationalism as a movement, offer insights on its recent emergence and present a theological response.

Lewis Allen is the Senior Pastor of Hope Church, Huddersfield. Lewis will speak on Sons of Thunder: Nicea and the Contention for Orthodoxy, exploring the build-up to the Council of Nicea (325AD), its central concerns, and the impact of its pronouncements. Time will be given to exploring the perennial issue of personalities in the Lord's work and the need to defend and to promote sound doctrine in the church.
